MANY HOUSES FALL IN TALCA AND CHILLAN

Authorities Are Asked to Declare State of Siege in Region Damaged by Temblor at 12:11 A.M. Today

By the Associated Press.
SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 1.—At least 22 persons were killed in an earthquake which shook the Chilean coast early today, with the likelihood that the casualties will mount when full reports are received.

A dispatch from the Teniente mine of the American-owned Braden Copper Co. said that 17 persons were killed at Barahona.

Five persons lost their lives at Quinta, where the railway station was wrecked.

Meager reports say that the important commercial towns of Talca and Chillan, near Concepcion, were shaken and it is likely there was some loss of life there. Many houses were destroyed.

Santiago and Valparaiso also felt the tremors, but suffered comparatively slight damage.

The quake was felt in Santiago at 12:11 a. m. today and lasted for about a minute.

Communications with the interior have been interrupted and the greatest difficulty is to get the rescue work.

No planes today and troops loyal army carriages were ordered to be sent through.

Abolition of War left for no plane today and troops loyal army carriages were ordered to be sent through.

$37,500 PEARL NECKLACE GONE; REWARD OFFERED

Sixty-five-Jewel Strand Lost by Young Woman Downtown or Stolen — Phone Caller Says He Has It.

A reward of $3500 has been offered for the recovery of a pearl necklace, valued at $37,500, which was reported by a young St. Louis woman to have been lost or stolen downtown on Nov. 22.

Since the large reward was advertised yesterday by Paul J. Bierman, an insurance adjuster, several men and women have appeared at his office in the Railway Exchange Building seeking information so they could join in the search. One man brought an imitation pearl necklace he had found.

A man who said he was Frank L. Smith of the Mayfair Hotel telephoned last night that he had found the necklace and wanted the reward money brought immediately to the hotel. The adjuster did not comply. He investigated and was told at the hotel that there was no guest or employee of the hotel by that name.

Bierman told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the young woman had enjoined him not to disclose her name. He said she was a member of a prominent St. Louis family and declared the insurance companies he represents would pay the full value of the necklace when it is decided there is no hope of recovery.

The necklace was described as having 65 pearls ranging in size from 14.56 grains to 101.60, a total weight of 270.40 grains. It was fastened with a platinum clasp which was adorned with a marquise diamond surrounded by rose diamonds and stamped with the dog's head trademark of Boucheron, a French jeweler.

According to Bierman, the young woman went downtown the morning of Nov. 22 in her car, driven by a private chauffeur. She visited several stores and at 2 p. m. was in a jewelry store where an employee observed the strand of pearls about her neck. At 7 p. m. when she returned to her home, she discovered the necklace was gone. One pearl had clung to her coat, indicating that the necklace had either been cut and stolen or had broken and was lost.

Kiel himself remains noncommittal, contenting himself with the announcement that he will make a definite statement in a week or 10 days. With the announcement of Circuit Clerk John Schmoll that he will back the former Mayor, however, and with the virtual certainty that Collector Koeln will support him as soon as he announces his candidacy, Kiel is regarded by his friends as a certain entry in the race.

Since the first intimation that he was considering entering the primary, Kiel's office in the Ambassador Building has been the objective of a constant series of visits by both Republicans and Democrats who want him to run.

Why Koeln Is Silent. Similarly, Collector Koeln, as one of the strongest Republican leaders, has been besieged by individuals and delegations who want him to announce for Kiel. The title of "boss" is known to be distasteful to the collector, however, no matter how strong he may want his political power to be, and it is generally understood that he has kept silent because he does not want to be in the position either of calling Kiel to the race or bidding him stay out of it. Political observers, however, regard it as certain that Koeln will back Kiel if the former three-term Mayor decides to run.

At the time it appears certain that when, or if, he announces, Kiel will have the support of at least 50 per cent of the city committee as well as the minority ward support controlled by his wife. The Government does not provide a guard, but Graham carried a revolver.

Graham reported the holdup as follows to postoffice inspectors: "I was driving west on Natural Bridge near Brown road about 4:05 o'clock when a blue sedan crowded me to one side of the road. On the road, standing on the runningboard of the sedan, jumped on the runningboard of my car, covered me with a revolver and took my revolver from its holster. He walked into a car parked beside the road. While we were gone, he transferred the mail bags to the sedan and he and his companion drove off. They headed toward the McKibbin road and then went south toward the St. Charles road."

Holdup Delays Plane. Graham continued on to the flying field and reported the holdup. The mail plane, due to depart for Chicago at 4:20, was delayed 10 minutes by Graham's delayed arrival and then took off with a small quantity of mail which he had received en route at the field.

This is the first local robbery of the air mail.

Graham noted the first three figures on the rear license plate of the robbers' car were 475. He thought the car was a Chrysler. He said the robbers were neatly dressed, about 35 years old and each had a revolver and a handkerchief which they held to their faces as masks.

60 MODELS OF AIRPLANES. CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—The first all-commercial exhibit of the airplane industry, embracing more than 60 models of modern aircraft, awaited the opening of the International Aeronautical Exposition tonight.

A motley array of planes—ranging from a 22-passenger giant to "gliders" and "town cars" models for sport use—crowded the Coliseum, the First Regiment Armory and the Greer Building. Another exposition, part of the same show, was centered at the Chicago airport.

KIEL SILENT, BUT FRIENDS ARE SURE THAT HE WILL RUN

Promises Definite Statement in Week or So as to Whether He Will Seek Fourth Term.

SCHMOLL FOR HIM, KOELN COUNTED ON

Half of G. O. P. Committee Reckoned on, Also—Miller to Base Campaign on City's Progress.

Friends of former Mayor Kiel are now confident that he has yielded to their solicitations and will within a few days announce his entry into the primary race for the Republican nomination for Mayor as the most formidable challenger of Mayor Miller's bid for a second term.

Kiel himself remains noncommittal, contenting himself with the announcement that he will make a definite statement in a week or 10 days. ## KING GEORGE HAS A DISTURBED DAY; IS SOMEWHAT FATIGUED

AIR MAIL ROBBERY LOOT $48 IN CASH AND $27 NECKLACE

Also Includes Valueless Canceled Bank Checks Being Sent to New York for Clearance.

POSTAL INSPECTORS CHECK UP THE LOSS

Two Cuckoo Gangsters Arrested as Suspects Deny Part in Holdup on Natural Bridge Road.

Postoffice inspectors, completing a check today, announced that $48 in cash and a necklace valued at $27 represented the total value of the contents of the five mail pouches stolen yesterday afternoon on Natural Bridge road, near Brown road, in the holdup by two masked highwaymen of Henry C. Graham, postal truck driver, who was on his way to Lambert-St. Louis field with the daily consignment of air mail.

The check by inspectors disclosed only 13 registered letters in the pouches, some of which contained the money and necklace, and canceled bank checks being sent to New York for clearance.

Two Cuckoo gangsters, arrested for investigation last night when found loitering at Sixth and Chestnut streets, denied knowledge of the robbery.

Back to Lose Nothing. Oliver M. Atterbury, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, said that bank had sent nothing by air mail yesterday, but he estimated downtown banks had dispatched checks totaling about $1,000,000 for collection in other cities. The checks are of no value to the robbers, and the banks will lose nothing in that way, but will be put to considerable trouble, Atterbury said.

Graham, the postal driver held up, is 35 years old and resides at Overland. Since the establishment of the air mail he has held the Government contract for delivery of air mail from the main postoffice at Eighteenth street and Clark avenue to the Robertson Aircraft Corporation at Bridgeton field, which firm carries the mail between St. Louis and Chicago.

At 3:45 p. m. Graham left postoffice in his automobile, accompanied by his wife. The Government does not provide a guard, but Graham carried a revolver.

Graham reported the holdup as follows to postoffice inspectors: "I was driving west on Natural Bridge near Brown road about 4:05 o'clock when a blue sedan crowded me to one side of the road. On the road, standing on the runningboard of the sedan, jumped on the runningboard of my car, covered me with a revolver and took my revolver from its holster. ## Miss Manville to Wed Nephew of King Today

MISS ESTELLE ROMAINE MANVILLE.

Marriage of American Heiress and Count Bernadotte First Royal Union Solemnized on U. S. Soil.

By the Associated Press.
PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Miss Estelle Romaine Manville, daughter of the "Asbestos King," and Count Folke Bernadotte, nephew of the King of Sweden, will be married today at a ceremony estimated to cost three-quarters of a million dollars.

Invited guests include the majority of those socially prominent in New York, some members of the Swedish royal family, and of the aristocracy of Europe. It will be the first time a member of a royal family will have been married in the United States soil.

Due to the small size of St. John's Episcopal Church, where the ceremony will be performed, guests will number only about 250, but the guests for the reception at the Elmsboro, the Manville country estate, includes 1000 names.

After the wedding the pair will tour the United States, which the groom has not seen extensively and later will make their home in Stockholm.

Preparations for Wedding. Florists, musicians and caterers have been busy in preparation for the event; the little country church, which has been redecorated and an elaborate Paris tulle provided for the bride-to-be. Her bridal veil will be of Brussels lace, which was worn by Count Bernadotte's grandmother, the late Queen Sophia of Sweden. The veil will be held in place by a coronet of silver and precious stones.

Three ministers are to officiate. The Rev. Ernest M. Silvers, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Long Island, will perform the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Edmund P. Burrill, rector of St. John's Church, and the Rev. John N. Lewis Jr., of Waterbury, Conn. Soderman's Swedish wedding march, Wagner's and Mendelssohn's wedding marches will be played by Archer Gibson, private organist of the Manville family.

Count Folke Bernadotte is the youngest son of Prince Oscar Bernadotte.

HIS TEMPERATURE RISES AFTER FAIR NIGHT AND PUBLIC BECOMES UNEASY

Some Improvement in Infected Lung Is Found, but Set-Backs Are to Be Expected.

NEW PRIMATE URGES PRAYERS FOR PATIENT

Prince of Wales Is Not Likely to Reach England Before Dec. 13—Makes Trip to Zanzibar.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—King George had a less satisfactory day, according to the bulletin issued by his physicians at 8:30 p. m. tonight. The announcement said:

"The King has had a rather disturbed day, with short intervals of sleep, and is, therefore, somewhat fatigued."

A slight rise in King George's temperature was announced in the medical bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace this morning.

The nation had been hoping that the King would make steady, although necessarily slow, progress toward recovery. The knowledge that his fever was higher, if only slightly, added uneasiness to public feeling.

The medical bulletin, signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn, the King's physicians, said:

"In spite of his majesty having passed a fair night, there has been a slight rise in temperature since yesterday. The general condition remains unchanged."

Variation Expected. It was indicated after this morning's bulletin that its less satisfactory tone was not entirely unexpected by the King's doctors. At the palace it was authoritatively stated that the King's condition bore out the statement in yesterday's bulletin that the possibility of exacerbation was not yet over and so long as this exists the physicians are prepared for a little ebb and flow in the illness. The rise in temperature today was one of the possibilities for which they have been prepared.

Palace officials indicated that they did not regard this morning's bulletin as alarming, since the King's general condition remained unchanged.

The press and the people were inclined today to view with continued hopefulness the fight being made by the King against pleurisy. It was felt that if the strength of the infected lung and the King's vitality could be maintained further progress of the illness could be watched with patient hope.

No Change Reported in Evening. Last evening's medical bulletin on the King's condition gave little comfort to an anxious empire. Signed by the King's physicians, it said:

"The condition of the King shows no change this evening."

Erastus Wells for Mayor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The election of Franklin Miller as Circuit Attorney, along with the six Republican Judges and three Democratic Judges, has convinced me that the people of St. Louis are again desirous for good government, regardless of party consideration. I think that I express the opinion of a great many citizens when I say it is time for a cleanup at the City Hall and we will have this opportunity next April.

I wish to suggest the name of Erastus Wells, the son of Rolla Wells, the most distinguished Mayor St. Louis ever had, for our next Mayor. I know that Mr. Wells, a successful business man (vice president of the St. Louis Union Trust Co.), would bring to the office dignity, efficiency and unceasing effort for public service.

Mr. Wells' recent election as chairman of the board of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce is proof of the high regard in which he is held by his business associates and fellow citizens.

If Mr. Wells should receive the Democratic nomination, I have no doubt that he will receive enough independent Republican votes to insure his election. The problem now is to get Mr. Wells to become a candidate. If enough pressure is brought to bear by the public (Republicans and Democrats alike included) on Mr. Wells to file for the nomination, he cannot refuse. It is my sincere wish that the citizens of St. Louis and the press will do all in their power to urge the Democratic Committee to draft Mr. Wells.

If St. Louis again has the name of Wells in the Mayor's office, the city can rest assured that the record and tradition of public service as established by that family in the past will be carried on for the ensuing four years. M.

Mr. Fahey's Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I HAVE read with considerable interest the proposal of Mr. Fahey to amend the statute to provide for the appointment of members of the Board of Education by the Mayor.

It was my privilege to serve as a member of that board from 1913 to 1915. At different times during that period a vacancy in membership occurred. Under the provision of the present law, such vacancies were filled by majority appointment. The men selected were Edward Gollra, Arthur Partridge, Palmer Clarkson and Frank Carter.

If the Mayor will appoint that type of men, and I have no doubt that he will, for the character of the board will either be a credit or a reflection on his administration; we will be assured of an efficient and unselfish board of representative citizens. I am inclined to favor Mr. Fahey's suggestion.

FRANK L. MAGOON.

Great Possibilities in St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE next year will witness an unprecedented growth in St. Louis and the country; and with that growth will come a rapid increase in the sales of all desirable industrial and home sites. For the city's growth in population has been by leaps and bounds, until now it lacks but little of the million mark. This has a great significance.

The vast expansion programs of St. Louis' numerous and diversified industries are attracting and bringing in skilled labor by the tens of thousands. Large manufacturers are bringing their plants here, because they realize that from a viewpoint of production and distribution St. Louis is in an ideal location. Within less than a 1000-mile radius live one-half of the entire population of both the United States and Canada, and within less than 500-mile radius live 40,000,000 people.

St. Louis with its 28 railroads, six interurban lines, many bus lines, hard surfaced roads for truck hauling, all radiating from the city in fan-shaped stream of transportation, furnish the merchant and the manufacturer better transportation facilities than that of any other city in the country. The trade of all the area of the United States can be reached quicker and cheaper from St. Louis than from any other city.

The barge system on the Mississippi is another most important factor in transportation—last year it saved the merchants of this city over one and one-half millions dollars. Here is an example of the difference between water and land transportation. A local shoe merchant is shipping shoes to Honolulu by the barge system, via New Orleans for $1.95 per 100 pounds, while the railroad freight rate on the same commodity per 100 pounds to Denver, Colo., is $2.48.

These are a few of the reasons why many millions of dollars are being spent by manufacturers on building programs in St. Louis. Last year's building exceeded all records. This year's building is already far in advance of that, and it is safe to say that 1929 will be still greater year.

MR. BRITTEN AND THE NAVY.

It is not plain that Congressman Britten, in his capacity as chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, exceeded his authority when he asked for a conference on naval affairs between members of our own Congress and the British Parliament.

This same point arose when Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, communicated with the Governments of Mexico and Nicaragua. Mr. Borah was reminded that the Logan act was designed to prevent this very thing, and since it was adopted by Congress individuals have been chary about communicating with foreign Governments. The Idaho Senator's reply to this was that as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate he is a responsible part of our own Government and its foreign affairs. He did not imagine that anyone would make a him with the Logan act, and nobody did.

It seems to us that what was true of Senator Borah as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee in the Senate is also true of Congressman Britten as chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee of the House. Granting that either could seriously embarrass the President and the State Department by unwarranted interference in foreign affairs, it is still true that their responsibility may not always acquiesce in failure of their superiors to act in a matter which threatens the peace of the country. This was what Mr. Borah did, and it is what Mr. Britten has done. There are innumerable precedents for what they have done. Indeed, private citizens, even since the Logan act was devised to induce caution upon the part of all persons acting over the Government's head, have exerted sometimes effective influence against war by appealing directly to foreign countries.

We have a more experienced demonstration of the relations of a whole people to whatever threatens their peace in what is happening in England with respect to the naval controversy. Not the Government alone, but the press and prominent citizens of all political parties, are concerning themselves with this great problem and quite openly discussing it. The English would not be greatly surprised if someone less than the Premier or the Secretary for Foreign Affairs made a suggestion even to Mr. Coolidge. Mr. Baldwin, the Premier, has encouraged greater contact and more discussion between ourselves and the English. It was in response to his general invitation to everybody to speak out that Congressman Britten called him suggesting a conference between members of Congress and members of Parliament.

It is not a sufficient retort that the crisis does not justify what Mr. Britten has done. The London News thinks he has rendered both countries a great service by proposing to substitute common sense for diplomacy. Neither England nor the United States regards the naval controversy lightly. The press in both countries considers that it has in it the germs of very terrible consequences. Our own New Republic thinks that if Mr. Hoover does not succeed in reconciling the naval differences of the two countries better than Mr. Coolidge has done a catastrophe is almost certain to result. The Nation is even more alarmed. It says:

The simple truth is that every cruiser we build from now on is built against England. No one in Washington believes anything else, for there is no other navy to rival ours. Germany has none; neither has Russia nor China. Italy's is negligible, and no one is so silly as to assert that France's navy could possibly attack us. The Japanese "menace" has faded out of the prints ever since the Washington conference limited Japan's strength to the ratio of three to our five. There remains only England. Against her we build, and against her only. Why pretend anything else? The General Navy Board's plans are obviously based on war with England. How else could they possibly be justified? This is the simple fact. Now is the time for the English-Speaking Union, and every other organization that exists to bring about better understanding between England and the United States, to make itself felt.

If those things are true there certainly is no reason why responsible persons in either Government should be dumb. We are faced by a very dreadful, nay, unthinkable, possibility. It is one that demands the best brains in both countries. The English see this. There is not a day but a Lord Cecil or a Lord Lee makes a suggestion. Mr. Britten has made one. We honor him for it.

COMING DOWN ON SILK.

The Caterpillar Club, a mythical organization composed of flyers who have saved their lives by emergency parachute jumps from disabled airplanes now has more than 100 names in its list of men who have "come down on the silk."

Altogether a total of 106 lives have been saved in emergency jumps, or, more accurately stated, lives have been saved 106 times, since Colonel Lindbergh, for instance, has four times made emergency jumps and thus become the only "four-star" member of the club. Of all recorded jumps only five have failed. In each instance the failure was due either to the flyer being trapped in the wreckage of his plane in mid-air, or falling to pull the rip-cord.

That record marks the parachute as one of the most important innovations in aviation, particularly for test flying and for military maneuvers, in which it has vastly cut down the casualty list in the past several years. For commercial flying, where airplanes have lower landing speeds and are more stable, the little package of silk has been made unnecessary by the advance of airplane safety.

THE MASTERFUL JUGO-SLAVIAN.

In Jugo-Slavia the sun shines brightly and blue skies fill the air—for the gentlemen. For the new divorce laws adopted in that land give husbands such consummate and exquisite power—at least technically—that it would appear the male Jugo-Slavian is well on his way to being the master of his home.

According to the recently enacted statutes a husband can: 1. Divorce his wife if she spends a night away from home without his permission. 2. Divorce her for accepting the hospitality of women friends without his consent. 3. Divorce her if, without his permission, she visits a dancing place or attends a movie. In other words, if after a hard day in his Belgrade office the Jugo-Slavian male spouse doesn't care to see Mr. Menjou in "Reluctant Wives," the little woman can't bully him into going by threatening to venture alone into the night to see Mr. Menjou's performance. Nor can the lady pack her overnight bag, leave in a huff and spend the night with her sister. If she does, she lays herself open to divorce. And very few are the women, despite what the cynics may say, who would take that risk even for a screen version of Monsieur Menjou.

EXIT CALLES.

With the accession of Portes Gil to the presidency of the Mexican republic, there disappears from public concern one of the most persistent storm centers of present-day politics.

This is Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, who a short time ago won applause throughout the civilized world by setting Mexico the needed example of abiding by the constitutional succession instead of using his power to perpetuate himself in office. A former school teacher, Governor of Sonora, a general under Carranza, premier under Obregon, and at length President, Calles became within a period of less than 20 years not only the first citizen of his country, but ultimately its great exemplar. There has not been another Mexican of his caliber since the revolt from Spain. Despite the ill-repute into which Mexico fell with most of the nations by seeking to restore their inheritance to the Mexican people, and notwithstanding the world-wide feeling that in separating church from state he had put harsh strictures upon the established religion, he is still recognized everywhere as the strongest and most far-seeing statesman which Latin-America has produced since Bolivar.

There is no such thing as agreement among civilized people as to the degree of justice employed by Calles in bringing Mexico where she is today. The things with which he had to deal are too controversial, they touch too acutely the hearts and the purses of all those whom he adjudged as standing between his people and their deliverance. The dispassionate historian will probably say of him that, like Julius Caesar and many another great builder, he was ruthless. Nevertheless, there can never be any question that his motive was the modernization of his medieval Mexico, and he proved the unselfishness of that motive when, like our own George Washington, he refused to continue in the presidency to the disparagement of democracy's ideal that one man shall not reign too long. In this, as in everything, he had in mind the great happiness of our own United States.

So much for Gen. Calles, a man for the American Plutarch.

WHILE THE KING LANGUISES.

The King languishes. Before the iron gates of the palace, in a patter of rain, people gather before a bulletin board. A glance at the latest bulletin, another at the north bedroom of the palace and they turn up their coat collars and walk on. A war veteran, cap in hand, stands aside so that the lady in the limousine may read. Gentlemen in topcoats, ladies in furs, sailors on leave, peddlers pushing carts—none is too busy to stop for the latest word from the sick room. In the north bedroom the heart of a haggard man hesitates, and subjects the world over do him reverence.

In another section, where streets are narrow and walls drab, a scrawny woman lies for hours in an agony of which the monarch's is but a pale reflection. Beside her bed a quickly summoned woman sits, wrapped in a shawl. In the pub around the corner the husband beats the table with his glass and calls for a toast to the King. Coster carts rattle by in the street below the hazy bedroom and slovenly persons pass without a glance up the rickety stairway. Yet in the midst of filth and rags and loneliness an event is transpiring, a thing of suffering and sacrifice, of such rare beauty that it dazzles the suffering of a King into a mere historical footnote.

The event has a significance that matches its sublimity. For while the child born to the dank air of the tenement may not become Prime Minister, he will, whether sluggard or sailor or saint, breathe the air of his ancestors, men who drank deep of their inherent rights and, rising up, forced the King back into his palace and invested the people with his scepter. Thus Kings suffer and sometimes die, but women suffer and nations grow and Kings are stripped of their power.

ECHO OF THE COOK-PEARY FIGHT.

Seldom has there been such a controversy as that which began in 1905 between the supporters of Dr. Frederick A. Cook and Commander Robert E. Peary as to which was discoverer of the North Pole. Everyone had an opinion, and the air was full of latitude readings and affidavits by Eskimos. When the smoke cleared away Peary had won recognition and Cook, his hoax exposed, drifted into the oil business and later to prison.

Congress, busy with controversies of its own and suspicious of anything from the Arctic, was extremely wary when asked to make Peary a Rear Admiral as a reward for his feat. The grizzled explorer was browbeaten and cross-examined by committees, and all the charges of the controversy were brought up afresh. Finally Congress conceded that Peary was telling the truth in his first message from the Arctic: "Stars and Stripes nailed to the North Pole."

But recognition was for Peary alone. The seven trusted officers and companions who had so prominent a part in the expedition which won the goal of 400 years' Arctic exploration still are without honors from their Government. After 19 years, Congress will have an opportunity to make up for this neglect, for Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania will present a bill at the coming session to give the men due recognition which will be posthumous in the case of three.

These unsung heroes of the Arctic are: Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, master of the Roosevelt; George A. Wardwell, chief engineer; Dr. John Goodsell, the surgeon; Prof. Ross G. Marvin of Cornell, drowned while crossing an ice flow; Donald B. MacMillan, whose first Arctic journey it was, but who has made many since; George Borup, a former Yale athlete, and Matt Henson, Peary's Negro servant, who stood at the Pole with Peary and four Eskimos on April 6, 1909, after the rest of the party, according to the plan of attack, had returned to the ship. Borup and Wardwell, in addition to Marvin, are dead.

The clouds of a bitter controversy and the forgetfulness of a new generation have blocked the rewards due these men. Aeronautics and radio have revolutionized Arctic exploration. The modern explorer makes a swift dash for his objective, and the world knows all about it next day. Peary and his men plodded for weeks across the rough ice behind dog teams, falling occasionally into the icy water and shivering at night in igloos. Months later they returned to civilization to find not fame but suspicion. Members of recent expeditions have been decorated almost as fast as they could get to Washington. Congress should not hesitate longer to honor these heroes of two decades ago.

OUR DAILY DEAD.

American Editorial Pages

Hugh Russell Fraser criticizes New York Times' editorial page for treating vital subjects of the day in too light a vein, although he points out that occasionally the Times prints amazingly brilliant articles; pays a tribute to editorials of the New York World, Baltimore Sun, St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

HUGH RUSSELL FRASER in The Dayton Journal

SINCE when has the New York Times had an editorial page worthy to be ranked with the standard of its news columns? The truth, discouraging as it may be, is that it never has; the fact is so notorious that among newspaper men everywhere the Times editorial page is the one thing that keeps the paper as a whole from being in every respect a model newspaper. In view of this, I was very much surprised to find in the Dayton Journal a letter from a reader who signed himself "Old Curiosity Shop" in which you were taken to task for commenting in a recent editorial on the fact that while the Times is a great newspaper, it displays a tendency to "sleep gently" and "stupidly" on its editorial page.

As a newspaper man, who has been reporter and copy reader on some of the largest newspapers in the United States and who began his newspaper training on the New York Times, I want to congratulate you on the aptness of your characterization of the New York Times.

As a newspaper the New York Times probably has no equal in the world; but its editorial page not only lacks character in the sense of courage, intelligence and conviction, but it is also sadly deficient in what is far less pardonable, namely, vigor and clarity of expression.

What is particularly amazing about the letter printed in the Dayton Journal, however, is the curious statement that on the Times editorial page "no joke can hope to creep in nor light statement ever show its head."

It is obvious, of course, that the person who wrote you that letter is not a frequent or careful reader of the New York Times. If he was, he would note it is rarely that he cannot find on the Times editorial page three or four editorials written in the lightest vein possible—that is, editorials of a humorous or semihumorous character from beginning to end, filled with sarcastic references and alleged wit.

This, I think, is one of the chief defects of the Times editorial page. Humor, of course, has its place—but not on vital issues of the day—issues which must be faced with courage and vigor of expression. Many and many a day I have waded through one of these long-winded editorials only to come to the end, having to guess just where the New York Times stood and what it was trying to say. H. L. Mencken, I am told on good authority, once offered to translate one of these editorials of the Times into English. However that may be, one thing about it all is certain, and that is the Times fills many of its editorials with a lot of sickening and alleged wit when what the reader wants is clarity, vigor of expression and, above all, profound and manifest sincerity.

Thus it is that I know many New York-ers who buy two papers every day, the Times for the news—it has the best news pages in the world, and the World for editorials. One of course may not agree with the editorials in the World, but what a tremendously stimulating thing it is to read comment on important issues of the day that is expressed in simple, forceful style and wrought in the fires of sincerity and genuine conviction. Only rarely does the Times achieve such heights of editorial greatness as are reached frequently by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, the Baltimore Sun and the New York World. But, and this feature is worth noting, when the Times does achieve such distinction it produces a product that is nothing short of amazing in its sheer brilliance of thought and sincerity of character.

One or two editorials of this type appeared on the morning after election day. One editorial was entitled "Mr. Hoover's Triumph" and the other "Victorious in Defeat." So tremendous an uproar did these two editorials cause that for days afterwards the Times was still printing letters from readers commenting on them one way or the other. For one day out of 365 the Times had forgotten to joke, to banter and wax witty, and had revealed an insight and wealth of understanding that was almost uncanny.

To Rolle Ogden, chief editorial writer of the New York Times, must go the credit for those two editorials. They will probably live in the history of the Times as no other two editorials ever will. What makes them so startlingly unique is not only the brilliantly illuminating light they cast on the present and past characters of two great public figures, but also because editorials of such a nature appear but once or twice in three or four years.

Your editorial summary the other day of the editorial character of various newspapers throughout the United States was admirable, and I think any newspaper man familiar with the newspapers commented on would most assuredly agree with you. The only addition I would like to make to it is the observation that for courage and high moral character, the editorial page of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch probably has not an equal in the country; certainly I know of none that outranks it in sincerity and clarity of expression.

Another paper, which you did not mention, but whose editorial page I would like to call attention to is the Chicago Journal of Commerce. Although this is purely a financial and business newspaper, it has a general editorial page—a page, incidentally, which is not only well written but is amazingly stimulating. One would expect, on a financial sheet, a stoddy, horseman editorial page—but here—praise be to God—is a page of living comment, vigorous expression and originality of style. Strange in what odd and obscure places genius shines forth!

It is that very fact, however, that makes the newspaper game the world of opportunity it is.

BULLFROG WHISKY.

OUR exchanges are paying considerable attention during the last few days to the appearance of "Bullfrog" whisky, which seems to be gaining favor over "White Mule." One takes one drink of the new whisky, hops about a little and croaks.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.

CONGRESSMAN-ELECT LOUIS LUDLOW of Indianapolis came back to Washington the other day and was received with loud acclaim by his associates in the national press club. Ludlow, a Washington newspaper correspondent for the last 25 years, achieved the astounding feat of getting himself elected to Congress on the Democratic ticket from a strongly Republican district. In responding to the greeting of his fellow correspondents, Ludlow said there was no more chance that the Democratic party would die than that friendship would pass out of the human heart.

No one who heard Louis do his oratorical stuff on this occasion could wonder at his success. He is a rare avis among the newspaper men at Washington. Few of them like to make speeches, and fewer still go into politics. Frank Kent, the widely-known political writer for the Baltimore Sun, was offered the Democratic nomination for Senator from Maryland at a time when Democratic success in the election was certain, but declined it. These writers who go into public office usually get there by the appointive route. Roosevelt put a number of his newspaper friends into high posts, and so also did Wilson. But even the acceptance of an appointment by a correspondent is rare enough to be a seven-day wonder. When Louis Ludlow actually ran for office, he created a sensation.

SENATOR COUZENS of Michigan not only has defeated the effort of the Treasury Department to plaster him with a $10,000 back tax assessment, but he expects to receive from the Treasury any day a check for some $725,000 which the Board of Tax Appeals decided was due him as a rebate for an overpayment. The decision of the Treasury to take its medicine without carrying the case any further has just become known. Senator Couzens' hail will be three times what his expensive lawyers cost him.

So ends the chapter in the famous feud between the rich but politically liberal Senator and the Secretary of the Treasury. Couzens has always maintained that the $10,000,000 assessment was an act of circumvention on the part of Mellon, and the circumstances of the case lent color to his belief.

THE Senator from Michigan is one of the supremely interesting members of the upper House. Notwithstanding his great wealth—he is supposed to have at least $40,000,000—sauntered away in municipal bonds—he is almost always on the other side from the Dave Reeds, the Hales and the others who speak for privilege. On any economic issue—and all the really important issues in Congress are economic—he is likely to be with La Follette and George Norris. Yet Couzens socially, as the saying is, goes everywhere. Naturally he often meets Secretary Mellon, and they shake hands with the utmost politeness on both sides. Not long ago, at an exclusive affair at the Italian embassy, Secretary Mellon took Mrs. Couzens in to dinner, and the Senator sat just across the table. Couzens has a uniform reply to all queries as to when he expects to begin voting with the old guard Republicans. "When they get right," he says.

WILKINS' TAKE-OFF DELAYED ONE DAY

Changing Weather Conditions Shows Deception Island Is Well Named.

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS, Commander of the Wilkins Antarctic Expedition.

(Copyright, 1929.)

This story is published exclusively in the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH. It will appear only in the Post-Dispatch in this city.

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Dec. 1. (Via whaler schooner, Dec. 1.)—Yesterday was the first fine day this expedition has found in the Antarctic. But despite strenuous efforts, it forced another postponement of our effort to take the air.

From 3 o'clock yesterday morning until last night we have slaved against heavy odds trying to get off. The treacherous ice shore, however, proved too much for us. But we hope today to succeed in the effort we were forced to postpone yesterday.

Everything looked fine, but Deception Island is a cruel name. Conditions, changing every day, continue to deceive us. Before we can fly again we must first wait for the weather to clear. The editor is assistant professor of English at Columbia University.

SCHULER IS COMMISSIONED AS PUBLIC ADMINISTRATOR

Resigns as Sheriff of St. Louis; Will Take New Office Monday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 1.—A commission as Public Administrator of St. Louis was issued to Anton Schuler by Gov. Baker yesterday following Schuler's resignation as Sheriff. The commission will become effective Monday.

Thomas E. Nester, a Deputy Sheriff, was appointed to serve the remainder of Schuler's term, which expires Jan. 1, 1929.

Schuler's resignation and Nester's appointment followed an opinion by Attorney-General Shartel that the Governor has the appointive power to fill a vacancy in the office of Sheriff in St. Louis. This power has been doubted due to the fact that the law provides for no succession in the event of a vacancy in the office of Sheriff in St. Louis. In Missouri counties the Coroner automatically succeeds to the office in the event of a vacancy and so on until a new Sheriff can be elected.

PRINCE CAROL TOLD BY MANU HE HAS NO CHANCE TO RETURN

Former Rumanian Heir Informed by Premier That He Cannot Be Disregarded by Government.

(Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Publishing Co., New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Prince Carol has been informed by the new Government in Rumania that he has no chance of regaining the throne of that kingdom, he announced here yesterday.

The information came in the form of a statement by Premier Manu in Bucharest that the peasant party Government has no intention of bringing up any question regarding the throne, but will stabilize the Government on basis of constitutional law.

As the regency of Carol's son, Michael, was named by King Ferdinand, who, under the Constitution, had the right to establish a regency, and as the once Crown Prince renounced his throne, there seems to be no question of Carol's return to the throne.

Mme. Lupescu is still with Carol here.

INCREASE IN WEARING OF SILK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—A trend from cotton to silk for clothing was shown for the period between 1922 and 1927 in a report yesterday by the Department of Agriculture on a survey of consumers' preferences among 1000 men and women representing all sections of the United States. The report showed, however, that an increase in number of cotton household articles in reports from 645 homes surveyed offset the cotton-to-silk trend.

Families with larger incomes and individuals in larger cities registered a change from cotton to silk. Women reported that "silk and rayon are more attractive and easier to handle than cotton." Men based their preference for silk and rayon on style and comfort.

In household articles, the report continued, "cotton is more than holding its own."

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.

IMPORTANT business in New York used to be conducted by executives who wore clothes into the shabbiness of a sick diary, featured frayed cuffs, run-over heels, and hated the telephone. Their old-fashioned ways symbolized honesty and integrity.

But it is a new and dressy age and important employees must attire themselves to its demands. In a large industrial concern with branches circling the world three high-salaried executives were recently given the gate with a year's pay. They had not progressed sartorially with their jobs.

Their salaries improved, but their mode of living did not. They continued to wear cheap clothing, shoes and hats and to patronize the less expensive luncheon places. It is axiomatic that in New York more than any other city one must spend money to make money.

There are scores of successful men who are convinced creating a personal air of prosperity breeds prosperity. They say they have proved it. Whether that is true or not, there is doubtless a mental stimulus to fine clothes and elegant food that has its effect.

New York conducts a large slice of weighty affairs across the luncheon table. In the atmosphere of a carefully appointed restaurant, men are likely to be far more impressive and convincing than in the slapping setting of a greasy spoon luncheon.

Men in large cities are forced into quick impressions—to take snap judgment. Hence the value of correct attire. In smaller communities a man's standing and character are not so debatable. His good and most of his bad qualities are well known and fancy food and bond street clothes will not change them.

New York has been trained to respect to a marked degree what it knows as "a front." It may be a bonded knee to four-fifths, but so long as one's lot is cast here the successful have found it wisdom to obey the metropolitan mandate.

THAT the speakeasy business is going into a tailspin is indicated by the sign over a padlocked place just reopened. It mournfully proclaims, "This Is as Lively as Any."

Restaurant Can Be Without Real Liquor.

THOSE who know say the only speakeasies serving liquor that will not kill on the premises are hiding away in bland innocence on top floors of lofty apartment houses. In this stand of the bootlegging bonanza few chances are taken. The list of patrons is limited and those who want liquid cheer must phone in advance. No more than 10 are permitted in the apartment at one time. They are so quietly conducted that often the owners of the building are unaware of the law breaking. Drinks have reached a new high in these haunts—being $2 each.

THE most accomplished theatrical dopsters declare that of some 40 new productions to finish out the season only two will be hits. So far there have been only two other pronounced successes. Yet what has made the stage business one of the most romantic and fascinating in the world is this uncertainty. The potential flop does become a smash. Not in our generation will the wisecracks who predicted failure be able to laugh off the amazing success of "Able's Irish Rose."

BROADWAY ladies, whom the tabloids often feature in Park avenue "love nests," have a new rendezvous where they can gather and recount the woes of a world filled with heartless men. It is a hair dressing parlor that opens at 4 a. m. whether ladies of the evening may go to be beautified before retiring for their day of sleep.

NOTED artists declare the most perfectly shaped feminine head in America is that of Mrs. Julius.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.

IMPORTANT business in New York used to be conducted by executives who wore clothes into the shabbiness of a sick diary, featured frayed cuffs, run-over heels, and hated the telephone. Their old-fashioned ways symbolized honesty and integrity.

But it is a new and dressy age and important employees must attire themselves to its demands. In a large industrial concern with branches circling the world three high-salaried executives were recently given the gate with a year's pay. They had not progressed sartorially with their jobs.

Their salaries improved, but their mode of living did not. They continued to wear cheap clothing, shoes and hats and to patronize the less expensive luncheon places. It is axiomatic that in New York more than any other city one must spend money to make money.

There are scores of successful men who are convinced creating a personal air of prosperity breeds prosperity. They say they have proved it. Whether that is true or not, there is doubtless a mental stimulus to fine clothes and elegant food that has its effect.

New York conducts a large slice of weighty affairs across the luncheon table. In the atmosphere of a carefully appointed restaurant, men are likely to be far more impressive and convincing than in the slapping setting of a greasy spoon luncheon.

Men in large cities are forced into quick impressions—to take snap judgment. Hence the value of correct attire. In smaller communities a man's standing and character are not so debatable. His good and most of his bad qualities are well known and fancy food and bond street clothes will not change them.

New York has been trained to respect to a marked degree what it knows as "a front." It may be a bonded knee to four-fifths, but so long as one's lot is cast here the successful have found it wisdom to obey the metropolitan mandate.

THAT the speakeasy business is going into a tailspin is indicated by the sign over a padlocked place just reopened. It mournfully proclaims, "This Is as Lively as Any."

Restaurant Can Be Without Real Liquor.

THOSE who know say the only speakeasies serving liquor that will not kill on the premises are hiding away in bland innocence on top floors of lofty apartment houses. In this stand of the bootlegging bonanza few chances are taken. The list of patrons is limited and those who want liquid cheer must phone in advance. No more than 10 are permitted in the apartment at one time. They are so quietly conducted that often the owners of the building are unaware of the law breaking. Drinks have reached a new high in these haunts—being $2 each.

THE most accomplished theatrical dopsters declare that of some 40 new productions to finish out the season only two will be hits. So far there have been only two other pronounced successes. Yet what has made the stage business one of the most romantic and fascinating in the world is this uncertainty. The potential flop does become a smash. Not in our generation will the wisecracks who predicted failure be able to laugh off the amazing success of "Able's Irish Rose."

BROADWAY ladies, whom the tabloids often feature in Park avenue "love nests," have a new rendezvous where they can gather and recount the woes of a world filled with heartless men. It is a hair dressing parlor that opens at 4 a. m. whether ladies of the evening may go to be beautified before retiring for their day of sleep.

NOTED artists declare the most perfectly shaped feminine head in America is that of Mrs. Julius.

FUNERAL OF ADOLPH GREELY

Retired Contractor Died of Apoplexy Wednesday.

Funeral services for Adolph Greely, retired contractor and builder, who died Wednesday after a stroke of apoplexy, were held today at an undertaking establishment at 5966 Easton avenue. Mr. Greely was 75 years old. He resided at 2704 Walton road, St. Louis County.

He was a member of a pioneer St. Louis family, his ancestors having been among the first settlers of the Florissant Valley. Before the Civil War, members of the family were large land owners and slave holders. He was the son of Antonio and Felicity Greely. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Edna Sunderman and Miss Nora Greely, and a son, Walter J. Greely. Burial was in Valhalla Cemetery.

Walsh, a New York lady from the Blue Grass regions of Kentucky.

IN a theater the other night I sat next to a gentleman—course his dyed mustache—who seemed to have the fixation he had fallen sole heir to the arm rest between us. After an exchange of pushes and shoves I felt a quick jabbing sting. I never spirits may smile, but I've read all about those poisoned needle affairs. So mummifying five mauve nothings I kept my arms in my lap for the rest of the evening.

AID SOUGHT TO FREE UKRAINIA

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1.—Announcement was made yesterday that the American Ukrainian Catholic clergy, representing the Ukrainian Greek Catholic diocese of the United States, had addressed a resolution to the United States Government and to the allied Powers asking their good offices in the freeing of part of Ukraine from Polish rule and the establishment of an independent Ukrainian state.

The resolution was sent to Secretary of State Kellogg and signed by the Very Rev. Alexander Prystay of Hartford, Conn., chairman, and the Rev. Dr. Onufrey Thomas Kowalsky of Boston, secretary.

THE WAY OF A HEALTHFUL DAY

A morning dish of ALL-BRAN prevents constipation

Clear eyes. Fresh complexions. Vigorous spirits. They all come when the right kind of food is eaten. One of the main things that our modern diet lacks is the roughage necessary to prevent constipation, which is the cause of so much ill health.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will furnish the bulk you need to keep well and fit.

ALL-BRAN is 100 per cent bran. It supplies roughage in effective quantities. Far better than part-bran products. At best, they can be but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed.

to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. An appetizing, healthful cereal of unusually nutritious qualities. Serve it with milk or cream and add fruits or honey. Use it in cooking too. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Railway Prosperity

Advances in the market prices of railway securities which have occurred in the last two years have been assumed to indicate that the railroads generally are enjoying increased prosperity. Unfortunately, they are not. The increased price level of their securities is primarily caused by the unprecedented buying of securities generally, and the prices of railway securities have increased much less, as a rule, than the prices of industrial securities.

Measured in relation to the investment in their property, the railroads of the country netted much less in 1927 than in 1926, and so far in 1928 they have netted even less than in 1927.

This decline in the rate of railway net earnings strikes at the roots of our national prosperity. It must be checked if the railroads are to be maintained in their full vigor of usefulness. General prosperity depends more than is sometimes realized upon the service the railroads perform, the employment they provide, the purchases they make and the returns they yield to their owners.

When railway earnings decline, the continuance of good service is endangered. Railway managements are forced to reduce payrolls and purchases. Operating and maintenance expenditures are cut down, and improvements are curtailed if not discontinued altogether. Dividends are reduced or wiped out. The result is quickly felt in every industry and every home.

On the other hand, when their earnings are adequate, the railroads are able to maintain their properties at a high degree of efficiency, carry on necessary improvements, employ the maximum amount of labor, make liberal purchases of equipment and other supplies and reward their owners in a manner that encourages the flow of needed capital into the railway business. The result is a quickening of industry and trade throughout the country.

Two influences have caused the recent decline in railway net earnings in the face of rigorous economy on the part of railway managements. One is the increased patronage of competing means of transportation subsidized out of the public treasury. The other is the constant whittling away of railway rates, seemingly inconsequential in individual cases but large in the aggregate, that is going on all the time. The power to check these tendencies lies with the great body of users of railway service, who will suffer most if they are not checked.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

President, Illinois Central System.

FRAUD AND ERROR
CHARGED BY RUND
IN CONTEST NOTICE

Democrat Defeated by W. V. Dever for Coroner by 833 Votes Expected to File Suit Monday.

CLAIMS ELECTION
BY 43,000 VOTES

Alleges at Least 65 Ballots in Each of 670 Precincts Were Wrongfully Counted or Defaced.

Charges of wholesale errors and of fraud in the count of votes for Coroner in the election of Nov. 6 are made in a contest by Dr. E. H. Rund, defeated Democratic candidate, against William V. Dever, Republican Coroner-elect. Notice of the contest was filed with the Sheriff yesterday. The Sheriff will serve the notice on Dever, who assumed the office recently, and the suit is expected to be filed in Circuit Court on Monday.

Dr. Rund, who lost by 833 votes on the official count, charges irregularities in all 670 precincts of the city, some of which might have been due to mistakes on the part of precinct officials and some to fraudulent intent, according to the contest notice. The official count is made by the Election Board adding the tallies of the precinct officials, but if the court orders a recount the board will check the ballots.

A vigorous campaign was made for Dr. Rund, based on the issue that the Coroner should be a physician, as has been the custom here for years. His notice of contest charges he was deprived of more than 4000 votes by the alleged irregularities.

Other Allegations

More than 10 voters in each precinct marked circles on the Republican ticket and also marked Dr. Rund's name on the Democratic ticket, nevertheless these votes were counted for Dever.

More than 10 voters in each precinct marked circles on the Democratic ticket and did not mark Dever's name on the Republican, yet these votes were counted for Dever.

More than 25 voters in each precinct marked names of various Republican candidates for whom they wished to vote and of Dr. Rund, but these ballots were counted for Dever.

In each precinct more than 10 ballots cast for Dr. Rund were altered and defaced to make it appear they were for Dever. Judges and clerks of each precinct erroneously rejected as illegal or defaced more than 10 ballots cast for Dr. Rund.

Some ballots which expressed no choice for Coroner were counted for Dever.

Ballots Improperly Numbered. Certain ballots counted for Dever should have been rejected because of improper numbering or initialing by the precinct officials or because they bore no mark indicating a choice for Dever.

One hundred or more absentee ballots counted for Dever should have been rejected because they were not returned in the proper manner, whereas 50 or more absentee ballots for Dr. Rund were rejected.

It would seem that Dr. Rund's contest makes charges of a general nature, as has been done in similar cases heretofore, with the expectation of gaining substantial relief upon the opening of the ballot boxes. The number of additional votes claimed for him in the foregoing instances, where specific figures are given is 42,700.

Franklin Miller, the Democrat elected Circuit Attorney in a much more vigorous and bitter campaign than that for Coroner, received a majority of 53,000 votes, whereas Republican candidates for other offices got big majorities.

Coroner Dever, after being served with the notice today, said he did not care to discuss the allegations. He will resist the contest.

90 DAYS FOR DRY VIOLATOR

Conrad Brooks Pleads Guilty of Possession of Liquor. Conrad Brooks of Belleville was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $100 by Judge Wolcott in the St. Clair County Court yesterday on pleading guilty of possession of liquor. He admitted selling beer and whisky at his Church street home.

Two fines against slot machine operators were assessed by Judge Weber. Emil Wolf of Belleville was fined $200 for having two slot machines in his saloon, and was fined a similar sum for liquor violations. He paid the fines. William Watson, proprietor of a barbeque stand in East St. Louis, was fined $200 for operating slot machines and $200 for liquor violations.

Buried was in Calvary Cemetery, Former Delegate Gallagher died in Mullanphy Hospital early Wednesday, from the shock of an operation necessitated, as previous operations had been, by an old bullet wound in the abdomen.

Friends of Gallagher, standing outside the church before the funeral, recounted anecdotes of his career, some of which were told in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch. One quoted his remark about the scars left on his body by the successive operations. "It looks like the heel of a hod-carrier's sock," was his description of the sewed-up skin. One related that during his last stay in the hospital Gallagher got out of bed one night and moved a white screen to a place in front of the bed of another patient. The presence of a screen before a bed is viewed by some hospital patients as an untoward sign, and Gallagher's neighbor, so regarded it, shouting for help when he awoke and saw himself screened off. A nurse traced the prank to "Jiggers."

ACASTER WILL MAKE DEBUT IN ST. PAUL GAME

By W. J. McGoogan

Buoyed up by two victories over Minneapolis, the St. Louis professional ice hockey team meets the St. Paul club at the Winter Garden tonight in the first of a two-game series. The second contest is scheduled for Monday night, after which the St. Louis squad takes to the road.

So pleased was Coach Alex Irvin with the showing of his men against the Millers that he will start the same lineup tonight. However, everybody on the squad, with the exception of the substitute goaltender, Vaughn, probably will get into action.

Cot Acaster, former St. Paul player, who was bought recently by the local club, reported yesterday and will be used as a spare right wing.

St. Paul is rated a good team although the club lost two pre-season matches to Minneapolis. At center is Des Jardins who has been a star in the American Association for three years. For the past two seasons he has led the circuit in scoring.

Gully Wilson, with the Chicago Black Hawks last season is coach of St. Paul while in goal is Stark who was with Philadelphia last season.

In the matches with Minneapolis the St. Louis team showed that it possesses a good attack and a good defense. Cameron, La Pointe, Boileau, Goyer and Hill all have shown on the forward line while Seaborn, Shields, Hendley and Taylor have been strong on defense.

Goaltender Anderson has provided a pleasant surprise by his determined guarding of the net.

The probable lineups:

St. Louis Pos. St. Paul

Headley, L. Defense, Goben

Seaborn (Capt.) R. Defense, E. Green

Cameron, L. Center, Des Jardins

Hill, L. W. W. Ingam

Referee, Joe Sills, St. Paul

Miller, heretofore regarded as an in-and-outer in boxing business, became the foremost contender for Mandell's title, as a result of his smashing victory over Jimmy McLarnin, the baby-faced puncher from Los Angeles, in their battle in the Olympia arena last night. Miller, a 5 to 1 shot in the betting, scored a surprising triumph when he stopped McLarnin, acknowledged king of lightweight sluggers in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round battle.

McLarnin's First Kayo.

The victory goes into the record books as a technical knockout for Miller. McLarnin, bleeding from an ugly gash under his right eye, his face a smear of blood, sat in his corner hopelessly beaten and unable to respond to the bell for the start of the eighth round. His handlers, realizing another punch might find him stretched unconscious on the floor of the ring, hurriedly tossed a towel within the ropes, indicating defeat. It was the first knockout ever registered against McLarnin.

BEARG MAY NOT BE BACK AT NEBRASKA

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 1.—The University of Nebraska's football coach, Ernest E. Bearg, has been involved in reports that Nebraska's coaching staff may see changes next year.

Bearg's departure yesterday for Topeka, Kan., gave rise to belief that he had been offered the directorship of athletics at Washington College, his alma mater. His contract with Nebraska will expire next September.

The names of "Biff" Jones, Army coach and Dr. John Jones, recently resigned coach of Ohio State, have been mentioned in connection with the Nebraska coaching situation. Athletic officials here have made no statements regarding any change.

As St. Louis Americans, hastily assembled but very presentable basketball team, the Cardinals, who have been a second attempt to stop the Bruins, accomplished a victory in Chicago, in the final of the season at the St. Louis University basketball tournament.

The only other berth on the team which appears to be certain is that of Ed Meyer, who is performing at the pivot position. Their leading veteran forward and the fourth letter man on the squad, reported to be a forward material, an abundance of forward material, among candidates are Gardner, Christian, Bert Constant, Joe Hohn and Ed Meyer, the last three athletes led by 17 games on the team's schedule, including two with the Bruins and two with Missouri. The schedule as announced yesterday follows:

Dec. 14—Purdue here.
Dec. 17—Iowa at Iowa City.

Jan. 5—Drake at Des Moines.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Lest We Forget.

The impression seems to prevail throughout the country that the new manager of the Cardinals is EVERY manager of the Cards since Hornsby, so we hear—will become just an errand boy for Branch Rickey, the real puller of the puppet strings. We quote from Fred Lieb, a New York critic, who is usually well informed and who makes every endeavor to be fair in all his writings:

"These numerous managerial moves in St. Louis apparently indicate that Branch Rickey still is the real manager of the club. He is the power behind the throne. He makes the heavy decisions and won't the title, or when he subsequently gave away many pounds in almost every bout he fought."

Loughran is being highly recommended as a heavyweight fighter. To the writer Tommy has not appeared a sufficiently hard hitter to make a rip-sporting fight in this division. But he surely is as good as Young Stribling, who is now being groomed for the leading position in the ring world by no less a master than Tex Rickard.

Loughran is good enough to deserve his chance, without having to surrender his present laurels. Probably the public will insist that he get it, despite the boxing commission.

The Whiplash Rider.

FAIRGROUNDS race track, at New Orleans, will again hold a "whiplash" meeting, beginning tomorrow. The experimental meet of last year, during which no apprentice rider was permitted to carry a whip, showed that 2 per cent more winners were added by apprentices in 1928 than ever before; while the leading rider of winners at the track was also won by an apprentice.

Time was when the equipment of every rider included both whip and spur. The steel-shod heel has long since been abandoned and now even the whip is found to be unnecessary.

Fooling the Horses.

IN bad old days, when racing was infested with all manner of cheating by owners, jockeys, and when the effort to put over a winner at a long price developed all sorts of ingenuity on the part of the crooks, whips and spurs were the vehicles of putting "good things" across.

The use of batteries in whips and spurs to stimulate the race was occasional; and when the vigilance of the stewards at race tracks prevented this, the trainers pulled a little psychology on their entries.

Horses were trained under battery conditions. The exercise lads would dig in his spur and send a current through his frightened mount, or perhaps he would touch his ear with a battery-touched whip and startle him into frantic efforts.

Thus the mount came to feel, whenever the spur or the whip touched him, that an electric current would immediately follow. He would lean out in excessive effort from sheer anticipation of a shock, even though the whip or spur used was innocuous, just the plain everyday equipment permitted by the authorities.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Speculation in stocks quieted down considerably in today's brief session of the market, with the price movement irregular. The wide-open break in Canadian Marconi on the New York curb market yesterday, followed by a further sharp decline in that stock today, coupled with the big increase in brokers' loans and the 10-point drop in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rate, apparently had a sobering influence on speculative sentiment.

In the closing transactions heavy profit-taking depressed a number of issues from 1 to a maximum loss of 1 1/2 points, suffered by Montgomery Ward. Sears-Roebuck lost nearly 7 and Packard more than 4 points.

Increased margin requirements but into effect today by some of the large commission houses, and the increasing number of cautionary advices, also tended to check speculation in check. While yesterday's 10 per cent call money rate is believed to be temporary, bankers held out little hope for easy money rates until after the turn of the year, due to the expanding holiday demand for funds. Steel shares ran into some selling at the opening, despite reports that the seasonal decline in production had been checked, but partial recoveries were made. The so-called independent motor stocks, which turned heavy, Graham-Paige gained about 4 points, while Hupp lost 3.

International Nickel, which closed 1 1/2 points at the opening, lost nearly half of its gain. Sears-Roebuck dipped nearly four points and such recent favorites as Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Childs and Stearns and New Jersey sold at a point or so lower. Missouri-Kansas-Texas common crossed 57 to a new high, and there was a fairly well sustained demand for the other railroads. Tools were moderately active in a select assortment of specialties including Radio, White Sewing Machine, Great Western Sugar, Coty, Liquid Carbonic and Skelly Oil. Total sales approximated $400,000 shares.
